BIENNIAL REPORT OF THE DIRECTOR
OF THE
NORTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF ARCHIVES AND HISTORY

JULY 1, 1946, TO JUNE 30, 1948

To R. D. W. CONNOR, Chairman, and GERTRUDE S. CARRAWAY, J. ALLAN DUNN, CLARENCE W. GRIFFIN, W. T. LAPRADE, MCDANIEL LEWIS, and MRS. P. F. PATTON, Executive Board:

I have the honor to submit the following report of the activities and accomplishments of the North Carolina Department of Archives and History for the period July 1, 1946-June 30, 1948:

POSTWAR PROBLEMS

During the biennium conditions were not as abnormal as during the previous twenty-four-month period, but it was nevertheless necessary to meet a number of difficult problems, most of them an aftermath of the war.

The most serious problem resulted from the period of inflation through which the nation was passing. As prices continued to mount, the program of the Department was affected in many ways, usually in an unfavorable manner. Most keenly felt of all was the fact that the Department's salary scale (just as the salary scales of other state agencies) failed to keep pace with the advancing cost of living. The 1947 General Assembly provided a blanket twenty per cent salary increase for all members of the staff except the director (who received an increase of approximately eleven per cent), and this increase was in addition to other increases that had been provided during World War II. Nevertheless, following the removal of price controls, the cost of living went up far more than twenty per cent. Wages paid industrial workers were raised again and again, the profits of corporate business were larger than ever before, farmers received tremendous prices for their products, and the national income was at the highest point ever reached. In general, however, white-collar workers found themselves left behind in the inflation spiral, and employees of the state of North Carolina were probably near the bottom of the list even of the white-collar group. By the end of the biennium factory workers, business men, farmers, bricklayers, plumbers, employes of the federal government, and almost everybody else were making more than state employes. In 1947 the General Assembly for the first time made a distinction between school teachers and other state employes, providing a larger increase for the teachers—an action which seemed unfair to the latter group.

The Department of Archives and History found that, because of this condition, its problems were more difficult to solve. Nearly every one of its staff could have made more money elsewhere and remained with the Department only because of interest in the work, loyalty to the agency, or other similar factors. When vacancies occurred on the staff it was hard to find competent personnel who would accept positions for the salaries offered. As the biennium ended, it was believed that no relief was in sight until the next session of the General Assembly, scheduled for January, 1949.

Inflation likewise affected other phases of the Department's program. The cost of printing soared to more than double the prewar figure, and this meant that it was impossible to issue as many publications as had been hoped. The cost of equipment advanced to the point where certain items (especially a laminating machine) for which an appropriation had been made could not be purchased. The cost of supplies mounted to such an extent that, in order to purchase sufficient quantities for routine operations, it was necessary to make transfers from other items in the budget, and the cost of official travel advanced to the point where the allowance made by the state for this purpose frequently did not meet actual expenses.

In spite of these difficulties, however, the biennium was one of real achievement. Long-range plans were made for the different divisions and for the Department as a whole, and a discussion of these long-range plans aroused a great deal of interest at staff meetings. In order to carry the Department's program to the people, more travelling was done by members of the staff than for many years—probably more than for any previous year. After frequent delays, it was possible to let contracts for the installation of certain much needed equipment, especially air conditioning equipment for the two lower archives levels and stack equipment for several of the archives areas. The installation of this equipment, in turn, was expected to make possible the more orderly arrangement of the archives and the taking of an inventory of all the archives and manuscripts in the custody of the Department. The beginning of work on the Emergency Relief Administration records in the warehouse at the State Fairgrounds held out hope that a problem of long standing would soon be solved. While the number of publications issued was not as large as had been hoped, nevertheless there was a wide popular demand for the one volume, the usual numbers of the North Carolina Historical Review, and the several pamphlets that were issued. The Hall of History completed an inventory of its holdings, arranged a number of new displays, and sought in various ways to improve its service to the public.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

On May 30, 1947, Governor R. Gregg Cherry appointed Mr. McDaniel Lewis of Greensboro as a new member of the Executive Board for a term expiring March 31, 1953. On the same date he reappointed Dr. W. T. Laprade of Durham and Miss Gertrude S. Carraway of New Bern for terms expiring March 31, 1953.

THE STAFF

The first regularly paid employe of the Department (formerly the North Carolina Historical Commission) was

Dr. R. D. W. Connor, who was placed on the pay roll in 1907. Since that time the number of regular employes on June 30 of each year listed below has been as follows:

1908 .....	3	1930 .....	10
1910 .....	3	1932 .....	10
1912 .....	3	1934 .....	8
1914 .....	5	1936 .....	8
1916 .....	8	1938 .....	9
1918 .....	9	1940 .....	9
1920 .....	9	1942 .....	11
1922 .....	9	1944 .....	11
1924 .....	11	1946 .....	13
1926 .....	11	1948 .....	16
1928 .....	10

Due largely to the abnormal conditions described above, there was a good deal of turnover of staff members during the 1946-1948 biennium, and in several instances persons remained with the Department only a few months before going on to better paying positions. Most striking was the case of Mr. Henry H. Eddy, who on June 11, 1946, came from New York to the Department as chief of the Division of Archives and Manuscripts, but who on May 11, 1948, left the employ of the Department to take a similar but more lucrative position with the state of Pennsylvania. In order to perform various special tasks, the Department engaged a number of temporary employes. One new permanent employe was added (in the Division of Public Displays), and a temporary employe, who was expected to be placed later on a permanent basis, in the Division of Publications. Including these two, the number of regular employes at the end of the biennium was sixteen.

Effective September 16, 1946, the director was given a leave of absence through June 30, 1947, to serve as assistant director of the World War II Records Project of the National Archives in Washington, D. C., and during the director's absence, Mr. Henry H. Eddy, chief of the Division of Archives and Manuscripts, served as acting director of the Department. In Washington, the director sought to take advantage of every opportunity to gain information that would be valuable to the Department, both in connection with his work in the National Archives and also by visiting state archival agencies outside Washington. He also audited two courses in archives work offered jointly by the American University and the National Archives. He returned to his duties as director on July 1, 1947.

Before the economic depression of the early nineteen-thirties, the North Carolina Department of Archives and History (then the Historical Commission) was receiving an annual appropriation for historical work of more than $30,000 (excluding the additional appropriation for the Legislative Reference Library, which was administered by the Historical Commission until April 1, 1933, when it was transferred to the Attorney General's office). At the bottom of the depression the Commission's appropriation was cut to $11,315, or only a little more than one-third the pre-depression figure. As general business improved and as the state's revenues increased and its financial status improved, the appropriation was augmented until in 1947-1948 it was $68,391, the highest figure yet reached.

The Department's annual appropriations and expenditures for the past eighteen years have been as follows:

RECOMMENDATIONS

In seeking to develop adequately the Department's program for the future, it is believed that the following points should be emphasized.

(1) An adequate salary scale is essential. Whatever else is done, the pay of staff members of the Department ought to be made commensurate with that of persons engaged in similar work elsewhere. It is impossible to conduct a first-rate program with an underpaid staff, for in the long run, in the quality of the personnel it employs, the state is going to get pretty much what it pays for. Whatever the Department may undertake to do, it will be hampered unless it can offer and pay adequate salaries.

(2) A new building is needed to house the Department's archives and manuscripts and the Hall of History, and to provide necessary offices and work rooms. Such a building should be provided with the latest archival and museum equipment.

(3) The Department should continue to emphasize its state records program, though not abandoning the fields of local records and private and unofficial manuscripts.

(4) The publication program ought to be expanded. The Department's publications have gone far to make the history of North Carolina known both to the people of the state and to the nation at large. The program ought not merely to be continued but ought to be conducted on a broader scale.

(5) The Hall of History, which serves in large measure to maintain contact between the Department and the people of the state, should seek to enlarge its program to the populace by sending travelling exhibits throughout the state, by the conduct of historical programs both in the Hall of History and elsewhere, and in other ways.

In general, the Department should seek to carry its services to the people of the state. It should promote and assist in the conduct of local historical activities, encourage the writing and publication of local histories of high standard, carry exhibits of documents and museum items throughout the state, and seek a closer tie-in with the public schools. The Department's program should never be merely a negative one, involving only waiting to meet requests for service—although such requests should always be met if practicable. Rather, the program should be active and positive, should involve planning what needs to be done and carrying the services of the Department to all parts of the state.

HISTORICAL MARKERS

The Twentieth Biennial Report of the State Department of Archives and History, issued in the midst of World War II for the years 1942-1944, could record no progress for the historical marker program but anticipated that it "could easily be resumed with the cessation of hostilities." Such has proved to be the case.

Between January 10, 1936, when the first marker was erected, pointing the way to the site in Granville County of the home of John Penn, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and the summer of 1942, when a scarcity of metals for this type of work forced a suspension of the program, a total of 440 markers had been approved. The program was resumed on August 1, 1947, when Mr. W. F. Burton, of Guilford County, joined the staff of the Department from the graduate school of the University of North Carolina where he is a candidate for the degree of doctor of philosophy in history. On May 12, 1948, Mr. Burton became chief of the Division of Archives and Manuscripts and on June 1 the position of Researcher was taken over by Mr. William S. Powell, a native of Johnston County and a graduate of the University of North Carolina. Mr. Powell came to the Department from Yale University where he had been a member of the library staff.

Until 1942 a yearly appropriation of $5,000 was made for the Historical Marker Program and each marker cost approximately $40. The appropriation in 1946-1948 was the same as formerly, but the cost of manufacturing the markers had risen to such an extent that for that amount only 65 markers could be purchased, whereas previously the number had been more than 100. During the biennium 42 new markers were approved by the committee of historians which passes upon inscriptions, and 23 old ones which had been damaged during preceding years were replaced.

The directive contained in the act passed by the legislature in 1935 authorizing the Historical Marker Program remains the guide in considering proposed markers. A committee of the state's leading historians meets at frequent intervals "to designate . . . points of historic interest in the order of their importance, and to provide appropriate wording for their proper marking." This committee, which serves without charge to the state except for the payment of traveling expenses, is composed of R. D. W. Connor, Cecil Johnson, Hugh T. Lefler, and A. R. Newsome of the University of North Carolina; W. B. Hamilton and R. H. Woody of Duke University; F. W. Clonts and G. W. Paschal of Wake Forest College; J. W. Patton and L. W. Barnhardt of State College; and Frontis W. Johnston of Davidson College.

In line with the revived marker program was a redesigning of the markers themselves. Plans and specifications were drawn up by members of the Department of Archives and History and the Department of Conservation and Development with the cooperation of the State Highway and Public Works Commission. Bids were called for on November 24, 1947, they were opened ten days later, and the contract was awarded to Sewah Studios, Marietta, Ohio.

In general appearance the markers were not strikingly different from the old model. They were of aluminum whereas formerly many of them were of cast iron. In the past an iron post was used upon which the inscription plate was set; the new post was of concrete reinforced with steel rods and covered with a sheath of aluminum. The top of the new post extended into a stirrup into which inscription plates could be fitted interchangeably.

The new markers, when seen in contrast with the old, appeared more substantial and at the same time the new type face gave an impression of neatness together with easy readability. Lower case type as well as upper was now used for inscriptions, whereas formerly upper case was used exclusively. It was believed that the new markers would be less likely to be damaged upon contact with moving vehicles than were the old ones. By terms of the contract with the manufacturer, the new markers were guaranteed against breakage.

In connection with the revitalized marker program, an analysis was completed of the markers erected since the beginning of the program. A breakdown and an index were made to indicate: (1) the markers erected in the three geographical divisions of the state—coastal plain, piedmont, and mountains; (2) the markers in each county; (3) the markers erected to commemorate occurrences in various historical periods; and (4) the primary subject of each marker. An alphabetized subject index was also prepared. The use of these indexes, it was expected, would insure the growth of the marker program along even lines not only in subject matter and historical periods covered, but also, insofar as feasible, in the just allocation of the markers throughout the state.

New markers approved for erection after the resumption of the program on August 1, 1947, were:

DIVISION OF ARCHIVES AND MANUSCRIPTS

W. F. BURTON, Chief

The work of the Division was hindered during the biennium by the fact that the same person did not remain as its chief. During the nine and one-half months' leave of absence of the Department's director, the chief of the Division served as acting director, leaving vacant the headship of the Division. When the director returned to his desk, the chief was free to resume his duties as head of the Division, but only about ten months later he resigned to accept a position in another state, so the Division once again fell into new hands.

Despite these interruptions a constant attempt was made to move nearer the ideal of putting all materials in proper order and bringing them under minute control, with the ultimate objective of making the archives and manuscripts as efficiently and easily serviced as possible. An impediment in the way of this desired progress was the fact that the stack areas were necessarily in a state of disorder. With faulty air conditioning equipment and an insufficient number of stacks, aggravated by wartime shortages, many of the Department's materials were inaccessible until late in the biennium.

NEW EQUIPMENT

The outlook became much brighter during the last quarter of the period. The beginning of work on the extension of air conditioning ducts to facilitate the flow of conditioned air through the stacks, together with the letting of the contract for new stack equipment for the mezzanine level, necessitated promptness in the moving of records to make room for crews of workmen. This made it possible to place a number of records on the lower level, and in improved order. Here was an opportunity to make room for much needed equipment and to improve service to the public at the same time.

EMERGENCY RELIEF ADMINISTRATION RECORDS

Of major importance was the beginning of the work on the Emergency Relief Administration records stored in the Department's warehouse at the State Fairgrounds. These records, created from 1933 to 1935, were turned over to the Department in 1941. This proved to be an unfortunate time for the Department to take custody of such a large body of records, for the reason that competent personnel was unobtainable so that material of necessity remained in an uncontrolled condition for want of processing.

On June 16, 1948, two students from the University of North Carolina were employed to work on these records until time for school to open in the fall, and it was expected that by fall the records would be made available for administrative and research purposes.

RELATIONS WITH OTHER AGENCIES

Aside from these important developments late in the biennium, other significant work was in progress. The Division continued to work closely with other state agencies by helping them to solve their records problems. During the period the chief of the Division succeeded in surveying the records in almost every other state agency. These survey reports were placed on file in the archives where they were made available for use in attempts to deal with problems of preserving or disposing of noncurrent records in the custody of other agencies.

CLASSIFICATION AND ARRANGEMENT

The work of classifying and arranging such archives of the office of the Secretary of State as were in the custody of the Department of Archives and History was continued. A total of 860 boxes and 138 volumes, including thousands of manuscripts of 25 different classifications, was thus processed. The labelling of these boxes and volumes was being continued at the end of the biennium. In addition, thousands of vouchers from the Comptroller's and Treasurer's offices were arranged and made available to the public. At the end of the biennium the World War II collection was in the final stage of listing and boxing and it was hoped that this project would be completed within the near future.

Mrs. Julia C. Meconnahey, a member of the Department's staff, examining a map at the specially designed map cases which contain more than 1,700 maps.

In 1947 Mrs. Eric Norden of Wilmington presented to the Department a group of survey plats drawn for the most part by her husband, the late Eric Norden, civil engineer. There are approximately 142 maps included in this collection covering an area of 14 counties located chiefly in south-eastern North Carolina. The surveys consist mostly of tracings on cloth but also include a limited number of prints on paper. An inventory of this collection was prepared, as well as a biographical sketch of Eric Norden, and it was expected that this would soon be printed in pamphlet form. The maps were arranged, numbered, and filed according to county, so that they were accessible to the public.

REPAIR AND BINDING

Much of the time of the restorer of manuscripts was devoted to repairing. Of the 109 manuscripts crepeline and "backed," 60 required slight repairs. Of the 225 manuscript, typescript, and printed volumes rebound, 25 needed slight repairs.

USE OF RECORDS

The number of visits to the search room, 5,105, exceeded that of any previous 24-month period. This was an increase of 952, or 17 per cent over the 4,253 visits for 1940-1942, the largest previous number. Of these 5,105 visits, 4,113 were made by residents of North Carolina while the other 992 represented 34 states and the District of Columbia.

State by state, the statistics are as follows:

Alabama .....	57	Iowa .....	2

1936-1938 .....	3,423

In addition to meeting visitors and making materials available to them, much of the search room attendant's time was devoted to seeking correct answers to enquiries which the Department received through the mails. In each case there was an attempt to be as helpful as possible without putting too much strain on the limited staff. Even so, these routine investigations were handled in increasing numbers. Of the 1,417 mail enquires, 1,231 originated outside of North Carolina in 43 states and the District of Columbia. In addition, 30 enquiries were answered by telephone.

The number of photocopies furnished by the Department, 2,303, exceeded by 512 the number furnished during the previous biennium. Of the total number furnished, 707 were sent to North Carolina addresses while the others went to 33 states and the District of Columbia. State by state the statistics are as follows:

The number of certified copies furnished also showed a marked increase. During the 1944-1946 biennium a total of 274 were furnished, while for the 1946-1948 period 435 were furnished, an increase of 37 per cent. Of these 435 copies, 107 were sent to North Carolina addresses while the others went to 29 states and the District of Columbia:

DIVISION OF PUBLICATIONS

D. L. CORBITT, Chief

The original act of 1903 establishing the Historical Commission provided for a publication program. Subsequent acts repeated and elaborated the original provision. In 1945, when the basic act was rewritten, the legislature directed that "materials on the history of North Carolina [be] properly edited, published as other State printing, and distributed under the direction of the department." This phase of the Department's work has always been regarded as one of its outstanding services to the public and through this means not only are wide contacts made but recognition and appreciation are also brought to the state.

An expanded program of publication has recently been undertaken and printed material is receiving wide distribution. Charts, leaflets, pamphlets, documentary volumes and numbers of The North Carolina Historical Review are circulated to foreign as well as domestic readers and subscribers. From the organization of the publication program in 1903 to the conclusion of the 1946-1948 biennium, a total of 261 titles or issues were published.

Though the rapidly mounting cost of printing, the difficulties in getting printing done, and the uncertainty of prompt delivery were definite handicaps, the publication program was continued.

Three pamphlets were published, as follows:

The Twenty-First Biennial Report of the North Carolina State Department of Archives and History, 1944-1946, 1946, pp. 54, illustrated.

The Silversmiths of North Carolina, by George Barton Cutten, 1948, pp. vi, 93, illustrated.

Explorations, Descriptions, and Attempted Settlements of North Carolina, 1584-1590, edited by David Leroy Corbitt, 1948, vi, 136, illustrated.

Two pamphlets were reprinted:

The North Carolina State Flag, by W. R. Edmonds, revised by D. L. Corbitt, 1942, second printing 1946, pp. 14, illustrated.

Tar Heel Tales, by Mattie Erma Parker, 1946, pp. 34, illustrated. (The material in this pamphlet had previously been published as seven individual leaflets. During the biennium the seven leaflets were combined into one pamphlet and illustrated.)

Members of the staff of the Division of Publications. Miss Eva J. Lawrence (left) is transcribing material to be edited and Miss Eloise Fisher (right) is mailing publications.

The Department published the following issues of The Review:

The North Carolina Historical Review; volume XXIII, numbers 3-4 (July-October, 1946); volume XXIV, numbers 1-4

(January-October, 1947); volume XXV, numbers 1-2 (January-April, 1948).

The Department published one documentary volume:

Records of the Moravians in North Carolina. Edited by Adelaide L. Fries, volume VII, 1809-1822, 1946, pp. x, 592.

Even though the Department at the close of the biennium did not have any documentary volumes in the hands of the printer, the material for a volume entitled The Formation of the Counties compiled by Mr. D. L. Corbitt was expected to be placed with a printer shortly. Dr. Frontis W. Johnston of Davidson College continued his work on the letters and papers of Zebulon B. Vance. Dr. Henry T. Shanks of Birmingham Southern College continued his work on the letters of Willie P. Mangum, and it was expected that by the end of 1948 he would have the first volume of this series ready for publication. Miss Beth Crabtree, who several years ago began editing the Civil War Diary of Mrs. Patrick Muir Edmunston of Halifax County, was unable to accomplish a great deal during the biennium because she was employed by another state agency and did not have access to research materials. The work of copying the four volumes of this diary, however, was completed and part of the copy was checked by the original. Dr. Adelaide L. Fries, archivist of the Moravian Church of America, Southern Province, continued her work on the eighth volume of the Records of the Moravians in North Carolina.

Mr. D. L. Corbitt completed most of the task of editing for publication Public Letters and Papers of Joseph Melville Broughton, Governor of North Carolina, 1941-1945. Most of this material was compiled, and some of it was ready for the printer. (This volume is not one of the Department's series, but since 1921 a member of the staff has edited the public letters and papers of each governor as he has retired from office.)

During the biennium the Division mailed the following number of copies of The North Carolina Historical Review:

July, 1946 .....	485
October, 1946 .....	472
January, 1947 .....	504
April, 1947 .....	581
July, 1947 .....	589
October, 1947 .....	578
January, 1948 .....	498
April, 1948 .....	583
<hr/>
Total .....	4,270

This total of 4,270 copies makes an average of 534 copies each issue.

During the period from July 1, 1946, through June 30, 1948, the Division received 725 paid-up subscriptions, either new or renewal, to The North Carolina Historical Review, or an average of 30 subscriptions per month. These subscriptions were divided according to the months as follows:

1946		August .....	12
July .....	10	September .....	13
August .....	7	October .....	20
September .....	15	November .....	165
October .....	6	December .....	79

March .....	4	May .....	45
April .....	29	June .....	26
May .....	42	<hr/>
June .....	13	Total .....	725
July .....	5

It is apparent from the above compilation that the subscription list of The North Carolina Historical Review was larger on July 1, 1948, than it was on July 1, 1946. It still was not as great as it should have been. The fact that it was impossible to get The Review printed on schedule probably accounts for a curtailment of interest by subscribers. It should be pointed out that the July, 1946, issue was delivered by the printer seven weeks behind schedule, and after that time the issues were delivered four to six months late. This placed the Department in a poor position to try to build up the circulation of The Review.

From July 1, 1946, through June 30, 1948, the Division mailed a total of 18,013 volumes, pamphlets, leaflets, and charts, divided according to the months as follows:

1946

During the period from July 1, 1946, through June 30, 1948, the Division wrote 2,146 letters, divided according to the months as follows:

From July 1, 1946, through June 30, 1948, the Division mailed 820 postal cards in answer to the inquiries by school children, as follows:

Five hundred and fifty-four copies of the Records of the Moravians in North Carolina were forwarded to forty-two states and to three foreign countries, and pam-

Eight sections of documentary materials and sixty book reviews were published. ## DIVISION OF PUBLIC DISPLAYS

MRS. JOYE E. JORDAN, Chief

During the biennium the major goal of the Division continued to be to improve its service to the public. Some of the ways in which this was accomplished were by making all of the materials in the custody of the Hall of History readily accessible to visitors; supplying information and prints to publishers, students, and writers; cooperating with other historical groups in planning local museums; arranging new exhibits and special displays for study, such as the North Carolina freedom exhibit; and attempting to impart something of the history of their state to the thousands of school children who visit the Hall of History annually.

In developing this program, it was necessary to inventory and re-store the entire collection of historical materials. This involved checking every item with the files, revising the entire catalog, re-arranging storage areas, and designing and having built storage cases for special items such as guns, swords, and costumes. This project had been started during the previous biennium and was completed during the first year of the current one.

Among the new exhibits which were placed in the Hall of History were swords from each war in which North Carolina participated before 1917; life in North Carolina during the period from 1865 to 1910 depicted by a spinning exhibit, a covered wagon, religious and educational exhibits, and a costume display; a special exhibit illustrating North Carolina's part in winning and preserving American freedom, originally planned in connection with the Freedom Train's visit to Raleigh on December 6, 1947, but retained as a permanent display because of the interest shown by school study groups; uniforms of North Carolinians in the Confederacy showing the various types worn by all ranks from generals to privates; and a collection of early North Carolina silver made in connection with the publishing of Dr. George Barton Cutten's pamphlet on North Carolina silversmiths. Dr. Cutten, who is one of the leading authorities in this field, loaned a comprehensive collection of early American silver to the Hall of History. In addition, special exhibits were prepared of early textbooks, guns, pistols, dishes, fans, Confederate dolls, early surgical instruments, and Governor R. Gregg Cherry's World War I uniform and equipment.

The Hall of History continued to cooperate with other historical agencies of the state such as centennial celebration committees, the North Carolina Society of County Historians, and the museums at Fort Raleigh and Guilford Courthouse, both under the jurisdiction of the National Park Service. The chief of the Division made a trip to Valdese in order to give advice regarding the establishment of a museum to the Historical Collection Committee of the Waldensian Presbyterian Church of that town. Other museums of the state visited were the children's museums in both Charlotte and Durham, the Mint Museum of Charlotte, the Wachovia Historical Society Museum at Winston-Salem, and the Cupola House Museum at Edenton.

The museum has had a more definite collecting program for this biennium than it has had previously, and a number of trips have been made in order to collect materials for specific purposes. More informative and better rounded exhibits can be planned by collecting the specific items necessary than by attempting to display all the items which merely accumulate.

During the biennium visitors registered from every state of the Union and the District of Columbia and from twenty-six foreign countries, as follows:
